ALL NEW ENGLAND CELEBRATES

Andover Well Represented in Big Parade Today. Over 50 Andover Boys To March. Many Townspeople There in Spirit of Pride and Thankfulness.

Of course, the only thought in the mind of every good old New Englander today, is the big Parade.

Since early morning, automobiles have been passing through the town on their way to Boston. And Andover people have been making their plans for days, in order that this town may be represented in that enormous crowd of spectators, — the greatest number that the city has ever known.

There will probably be at least fifty Andover soldiers in that long line, and eager friendly eyes from the home town will be watching for those boys to pass.

Just how many Andover spectators will be present it is impossible to estimate, but with the public schools, Tyer Rubber Company and several other concerns closed to make this day a holiday, to say nothing of the hundreds of individuals who are there, it is no wonder that the town seems deserted. Yet there is surely just as much pride for Andover boys in the hearts of those who are staying at home, and the whole town is united in the feeling of thanksgiving that so many have been spared to take part in this great historic celebration.

PUBLIC HEALTH MEETING

Annual Meeting Held Last Evening. Dr. Simpson Gave Interesting Talk

The rainy weather last evening prevented the annual meeting of the Andover Public Health Association, held in Punchard Hall, from having the usual good attendance.

The work accomplished by this organization during the past year was shown in the reports of the various officers and of the Visiting Nurse.

There are many next year's needs. Among them are: an automobile for the visiting nurse, a school nurse, a dental clinic and a child welfare nurse.

Miss Marie Campbell in her report, shows that the number of tuberculosis patients cured for this year, has been fourteen, and that she has visited in all, 1774 cases.

Dr. C. S. Simpson of Lowell, the state district health officer, then addressed the meeting and made several helpful suggestions in the way in which this association may be of more help to the community.

REVIEW AT DEVENS

Never-to-be-Forgotten Spectacle For the Thousands Present On Tuesday

Bright sunshine and warm spring-time air, thousands of happy people and the vast open space filled with returned soldiers, made Tuesday, for those who were fortunate enough to be at Camp Devens, a day never to be forgotten. And Andover had many representatives there to view the town boys' part in the great event.

The parade today, may have more witnesses than the 26th Division marches through Boston's streets with many bands and cheering friends from all over New England, but the picture of those military men all grouped together in such a huge mass that one's eyes could scarcely comprehend the vastness of it all, — that picture will remain in the memory forever.

The decoration of the twelve division flags by General Hale, assisted by Major Taylor and Colonel Stevens; the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by that band of two hundred and fifty musicians; the ceremony of officially awarding the distinguished service crosses by General Hale and General Edwards to the forty-nine heroes, including the one to the father of Private Michael J. Perkins, who on the 27th of last October, had given his life at Belleau Wood; the glistering of the sunshine on the thousands of bayonets as the soldiers stood at attention; the reviewing of the troops by the officers on their galloping horses, the six governors, led by Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts in the automobiles; the applause given to Col. "Eddie" Logan as he led his regiment down the field; the many greetings of sons and their families; — these are only a few of the scenes of that great day at Camp Devens.

Traffic men estimated that there were about 40,000 automobiles in camp during the day, and with all that number, no case of accident was reported at the base hospital. Indeed, from every point of view this final official review of the well-loved Yankee Division, was an unqualified success.

The Fifth Liberty Loan Campaign started off Monday morning with Andover's usual enthusiasm and interest in a good thing.

Last Friday afternoon the Women's teams met in the office of the Merrimack Mutual Fire Insurance Co. with their chairman, Mrs. John V. Holt. The meeting was well attended by about forty women, and they all were most eager to do their part toward making this a Victory Loan in every sense of the word. Mrs. Holt gave a splendid talk on the way in which the women can be of help, and they all agreed to put this through as a "Whirlwind" Drive. Mr. Flagg then explained the technical side of the Loan and answered questions regarding the work of the solicitor. Buttons, cards and all necessary equipment were then given out.

In the evening, Mr. Flagg, chairman of Andover's Liberty Loan Committee, met all the men canvassers in the same office. There were over sixty men present, and they also showed the same energetic spirit and eagerness to put through this victorious Fifth. C. C. Spring discussed the technical features of the Loan, then Olin W. Hill aroused great enthusiasm by his talk on the larger phases of the public's attitude toward Government securities. One of the men said afterward, "It was one of the best sermons I have heard for a long while" and that proves how much of an incentive it must have been to the workers to push through the drive.

Ballardvale did not organize until Monday evening, when William Shaw, their chairman, called together the canvassers in the community room, and gave them a spirited talk on their work and methods. The room was patriotically and gaily decorated with many posters, and the meeting was most successful.

Although it is impossible to report this week, any definite amount of money raised, we can report that the sales seem to be coming along just as well as in the past Loans. Several business men have expressed the opinion that they cannot afford to lose the chance of purchasing these government securities, and that the investment side of this loan is too good to miss.

One thing to emphasize again, is the

THE SHOP THAT'S DIFFERENT

The man who says he doesn't want to subscribe to the "Victorious Fifth" because he doesn't see how or where all the other Loan money has been spent, is like the father who says to his son: "Willie, where is that nickel I gave you last week?"

With all the latest heroes ever in our minds, it is good to take a day off and give a thought to the deeds of Paul Revere and Captain Parker with his sixty brave minute men, who stood against the British eight hundred strong, and ushered in the independence of our United States.

In Frank P. Sibley's talk at the April meeting of the Massachusetts Press Association Monday, he said among other well worth while things, that he would have everybody, big and little, great and small, serve the country. No man should be allowed to speak of the United States as "my country" unless he could show that he had done something for his country. He would have each boy in the land, and each girl, too, undergo a course of training to last about a year, this to come between the high school and college courses.

Some could be given military training, others training in building roads, telephony, mining, transport work, forestry, munitions, in fact, in some branch of work which is needed in time of war; then, in case of war, America would have an almost unlimited force ready to do the multitudinous things necessary without such a waste of time in training them.

This would give the boys and girls the opportunity of speaking of "my country," because they would have learned that the chief motive in life was not to get a lot of money in the easiest possible way, but to close each day with the satisfaction that they had put more into the world than was there when they started work in the morning.

Secretary Glass met the many obstacles that had been feared in connection with the Fifth Liberty Loan, by evading them. Not that anyone doubted but what our wealthy and perfectly intact country would "put through" the Victorious Fifth; it wasn't that fear. But most of the inducements in the way of tax exemption and interest rates had been used up.

Perhaps the biggest surprise which came to the people, was the reduction of the amount of the Loan and the announcement that over-subscriptions would not be accepted. Of course, every other Loan has been over-subscribed and it stands to reason that this one will be, too, because of the splendid investment appeal that it makes to a good business man. There is the choice of the 3 1/2 percent on the tax-exempt issue, or the 4 1/2 percent on the non-exempt and the issues are interconvertible. Certainly no offer could be more inviting. The need for "begging" people to buy seems to be obviated. And nowadays they do not need to be "convinced." They recognize a good thing and go after it.

In the last week's Local News Notes was an error in the giving of Mrs. Frank M. Foster's name instead of that of Mrs. F. Homer Foster, who was in charge of the meeting of the Courteous Circle of King's Daughters, when they had their "Polish Night." For that error we are exceedingly sorry.

Andover is one of the few fortunate towns that possess a loyal group of telephone operators. Such splendid spirit as has been shown in their sticking-to-the-post, in the face of all kinds of temptations to leave, shows that in this town are women who are sufficiently independent to abide by their own convictions. With New England's service so completely crippled, it is almost unbelievable that the workers here have been continuing to give service promptly and courteously throughout the week. And there is no doubt but what in the end, the gratitude and appreciation of the public will repay them, along with some kind of a more material reward.

And what about the gardens this year?

Those who had war gardens last summer and the summer before have done all the dirty work, — they have dug and hoed and bent themselves double with planting seeds and zealous pampering and coaxing. Now the ground is in fine shape and will respond to slight effort on the part of the "farmers." It seems a shame to allow any land that was made fertile in war time, to get back into its former untamed state. Have you planted your garden yet? Can you resist the seed catalogues? Isn't the smell of the rich brown sun-warmed earth calling to you?

REVIEW AT DEVENS

Never-to-be-Forgotten Spectacle For the Thousands Present On Tuesday

Bright sunshine and warm spring-time air, thousands of happy people and the vast open space filled with returned soldiers, made Tuesday, for those who were fortunate enough to be at Camp Devens, a day never to be forgotten. And Andover had many representatives there to view the town boys' part in the great event.

The parade today, may have more witnesses when the 26th Division marches through Boston's streets with many bands and cheering friends from all over New England, but the picture of those military men all grouped together in such a huge mass that one's eyes could scarcely comprehend the vastness of it all,—that picture will remain in the memory forever.

The decoration of the twelve division flags by General Hale, assisted by Major Taylor and Colonel Stevens; the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by that band of two hundred and fifty musicians; the ceremony of officially awarding the distinguished service crosses by General Hale and General Edwards to the forty-nine heroes, including the one to the father of Private Michael J. Perkins, who on the 27th of last October, had given his life at Belleau Bois; the glistening of the sunshine on the thousands of bayonets as the soldiers stood at attention; the reviewing of the troops by the officers on their galloping horses, the six governors, led by Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts in the automobiles; the applause given to Col. "Eddie" Logan as he led his regiment down the field; the many greetings of sons and their families;—these are only a few of the scenes of that great day at Camp Devens.

Traffic men estimated that there were about 40,000 automobiles in camp during the day, and with all that number, no case of accident was reported at the base hospital. Indeed, from every point of view this final official review of the well-loved Yankee Division, was an unqualified success.

The Fifth Liberty Loan Campaign started off Monday morning with Andover's usual enthusiasm and interest in a good thing.

Last Friday afternoon the Women's teams met in the office of the Merrimac Mutual Fire Insurance Co. with their chairman, Mrs. John V. Holt. The meeting was well attended by about forty women, and they all were most eager to do their part toward making this a Victory Loan in every sense of the word. Mrs. Holt gave a splendid talk on the way in which the women can be of help, and they all agreed to put this through as a "Whirlwind" Drive. Mr. Flagg then explained the technical side of the Loan and answered questions regarding the work of the solicitor. Buttons, cards and all necessary equipment were then given out.

In the evening, Mr. Flagg, chairman of Andover's Liberty Loan Committee, met all the men canvassers in the same office. There were over sixty men present, and they also showed the same energetic spirit and eagerness to put through this Victorious Fifth. C. C. Spring discussed the technical features of the Loan, then Olin W. Hill aroused great enthusiasm by his talk on the larger phases of the public's attitude toward Government securities. One of the men said afterward, "It was one of the best sermons I have heard for a long while" and that proves how much of an incentive it must have been to the workers to push through the drive.

Ballardvale did not organize until Monday evening, when William Shaw, their chairman, called together the canvassers in the community room, and gave them a spirited talk on their work and methods. The room was patriotically and gaily decorated with many posters, and the meeting was most successful.

Although it is impossible to report this week, any definite amount of money raised, we can report that the sales seem to be coming along just as well as in the past Loans. Several business men have expressed the opinion that they cannot afford to lose the chance of purchasing these government securities, and that the investment side of this loan is too good to miss.

One thing to emphasize again, is the

What New York Newspapers Say of Cleopatra

Uncommonly fine picture. The finest sort of film fare, and movie fans are certain to flock to it. From a scenic standpoint—a triumph for the director. The naval battle at Actium is made most impressive, and the handling of the chariots also furnishes many a thrilling moment. Costumes so thoroughly in attune with the period they are likely to cause not a little comment.
—Times.
One of the most sumptuous and sensational motion picture spectacles that have been produced. In largeness of scope and appearance of solid reality its ensemble scenes have had no superior and few equals. The massive scenes of ancient Rome and Alexandria were superb. Miss Bara's frank theatricalism protects her work from any undue suggestiveness.—Herald.

The picture is so big that one is completely overwhelmed. It seems as if a fortune must have been expended in each scene which appears on the screen, and the spectacle simply beggars description. The Fox production is flawless in its setting—magnificent beyond compare. The performance of the star is at all times vastly interesting. Never has Miss Bara looked so regally beautiful, and if the original Cleo were just half so lovely as her prototype we do not blame Antony for renouncing
Rome.—Tribune.

In regard to the relic train which was to have come to Andover on May 2nd.
Mr. Flagg received a communication, stating that it would be impossible for the train to be in this town at all.

The train, however, with its three flat cars, one box car and a tourist sleeper, bearing all kinds of German trophies, will be well worth seeing, and maybe Andover persons will be able to go to some nearby place to see these war relics. There will be aerial bombs, heavy guns, trench mortars, flame throwers, rifles and all kinds of interesting things. The following schedule tells where it will stop on May 2nd.

Leave Marlboro, 6.15 a.m.; at Concord, 9.00; Waltham, 10.05; Boston
12.50 p. m.; Lowell, 2.00-4.00; Bradford,
4.50; Georgetown, 5.05; Newburyport,
7.20.

The train will remain at Newbury-port overnight, then on May 3rd, it will be at Amesbury from 8.00-10.00 a.m.;
Beverly, 11.00 to 1.00 p.m.; Gloucester
2.00 to 4.00; and Peabody all night.

On May 4th, it will be in Salem from 9.00 to 11.00 a.m.; at Marblehead,
11.15 to 2.00 p. m.; and at Lynn from
2.30 to 5.00 p. m.

Two German helmets, taken from Coblenz by the Americans, have been sent to the town of Andover by the Victory Loan Committee. It had been suggested that these be offered as prizes to Liberty Loan canvassers, but in this town, where the districts are portioned out, and certain canvassers have greater chances of obtaining larger and more subscriptions than others, that suggestion did not seem either fair or practical. They will, therefore, be kept as property of the town of Andover and are now on exhibition in the Andover Savings Bank.

ASSESSORS' NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 41 of Part I of Chapter 490 of the Acts of 1909, as amended by Sec. 5, Chap. 198, Acts of 1914, all persons, firms, and corporations, domestic or foreign, subject to taxation in the town of Andover are hereby notified and required to bring in to the assessors of said town ON OR BEFORE THE 15TH DAY OF MAY NEXT, true lists. In case of residents a true list of all their polls and personal estate not exempt from taxation, of which they were possessed on the first day of April in the current year, and in case of non-residents and foreign corporations a true list of all their personal estate in said town not exempt from taxation, which list must be verified by oath as required by Section 43 of said Part I, as amended by Chapter 294 of the General Acts of 1916.

Under the provisions of Section 42 of said Part I, as amended by Chapter 515, Acts of 1909, the above-mentioned lists must be in form prescribed by the Tax Commissioner of the Commonwealth. These blank forms may be had at the Assessors' office, or will be mailed to any address upon application.

Section 45 of Part I of Chapter 490, Acts of 1909. A mortgage or mortgage of real estate may bring into the assessors of the city or town in which it lies, within the time prescribed by the notice under section forty-one, a statement under oath of the amount secured thereon or on each separate parcel thereof, with the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagor or mortgagee. If such property is situated in two or more places, or if a recorded mortgage includes two or more estates or parts of an estate as security for one sum, such statement shall include an estimate of the interest of the mortgagee in each estate or part of an estate. The assessors shall, from such statement, or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate interest of the mortgagor or mortgagee, respectively, in said estates, and shall assess the same accordingly. If, in any year, such statement is not brought in, the tax for that year on such real estate shall not be invalid merely for the reason that the interest of the mortgagee therein has not been assessed to him.

In accordance with Section 41 aforesaid, as amended by Chapter 198, Acts of 1914, all persons and corporations are hereby required to bring in to the assessors, on or before the 15th day of May next, true lists of all real and personal estate held by them, respectively, for literary, temperance, benevolent, charitable, or scientific purposes on the first day of April, in the current year, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of April; such lists and statements to be in accordance with blanks furnished by the Tax Commissioner.

P. A. MEMORIAL

Plans Submitted for Permanent Monument to Heroic Dead—Assembly Hall and Tower to be Main Features

The proposed memorial building with its Tower, Assembly Hall and recitation rooms will be situated off Main street, just about opposite Salem street. The house now occupied by L. G. Lynde will be moved, and a wide street cut through will lead to the building.

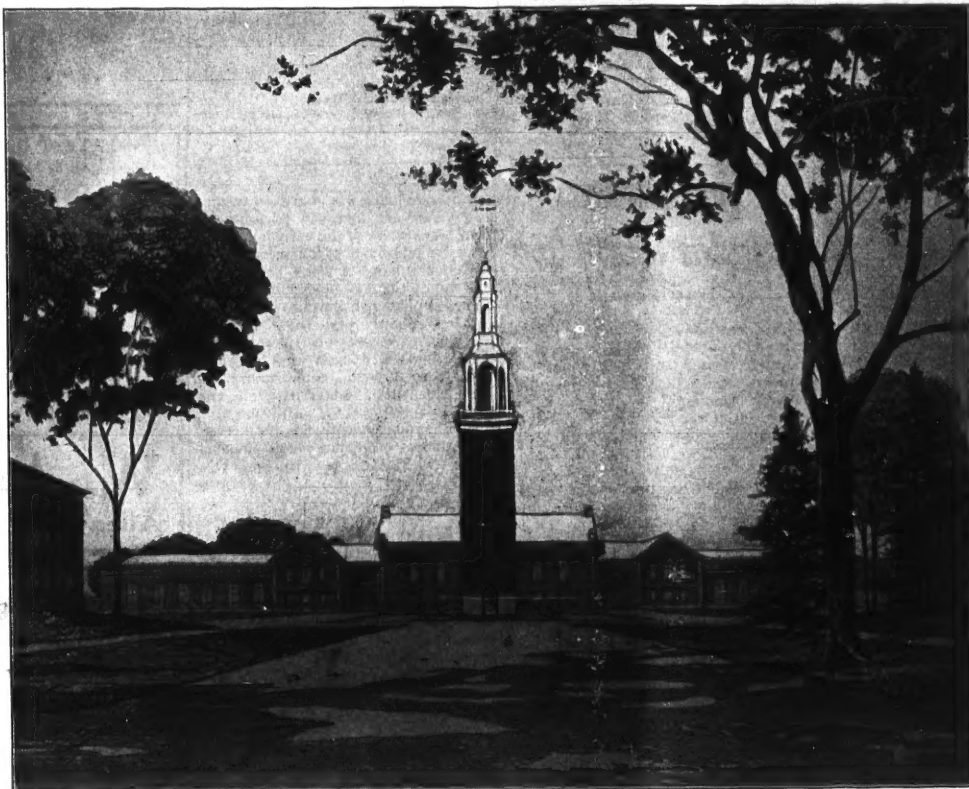

The account given in the April Bulletin explains the need for such a building.

Naturally the question of some form of permanent monument to Andover's heroic dead has already been brought up for discussion, and, at the suggestion of a group of our prominent alumni, plans have been drawn for a Memorial Building containing a large Assembly Hall and recitation rooms. Those who are at all familiar with the school in recent years need no proof that this is probably its greatest need. We are still obliged to hold lectures and public entertainments in the Stone Chapel, a structure certainly not intended for such gatherings, and capable of holding, when all the students are present, only a very limited number of guests. The proposed new building will have an auditorium which will accommodate comfortably, at least, a thousand people, and ought to afford ample space for even the most extraordinary occasions.

The sketches, moreover, call for a number of commodious recitation rooms which should give a pleasing change from the dingy and eternally dust-covered woodwork in Pearson Hall. Furthermore, the present Main Building is in such condition that its use for recitation purposes may, before many months become hazardous. The suggested site, west of Main Street near the northern end of the old running track, is far enough from the thoroughfare to prevent disturbance by trucks and street-cars, and, if the building is located there, the Academy will be centralized more than before on the Hill itself. With the completion of such a building many of the pressing administrative problems now confronting the Principal and his assistants will be eliminated. A distinguishing feature of the preliminary designs is a tower in front of and detached from the main structure, in which will be placed tablets commemorating Phillips men in service, but especially those who gave their lives in the cause of liberty. The dignified and appropriate character of such a Memorial Building will certainly appeal,—indeed has already appealed,—to many graduates, and particularly to the families of those to whom it will be dedicated. It is far from being the purpose of the Bulletin to solicit funds for even the best of projects; but the fact remains that the comprehensive scheme thus roughly outlined, can be made possible only through the continued generosity of many who have already shown themselves ready to further the Academy's welfare.

EASTERLY APPROACH TO PROPOSED MEMORIAL BUILDING AND TOWER

A Discriminating Division

"Don't talk to me about the wonders of past ages," said Uncle Joe Cannon. "The world today, is far more wonderful than ever before. Just think, it took Columbus as many months as it now takes days, to cross the ocean, and we talk about traveling a mile a minute as though it were nothing. Why, the other day I dropped into a country school just in time to hear the teacher ask: 'Johnny, into what two great classes is the human race divided?' And Johnny answered promptly: 'Motorists and pedestrians.' That's what I call progress. After awhile there won't be any pedestrians."—Boston Globe.

Christ Church Notes

The service on Sunday at 10.30 a.m. will be a memorial service. Bishop Lawrence has set forth this "office of Commemoration of Those who have Given Their Lives for Our Country." On the list of Christ Church are two gold stars, one each against the names of Thomas W. Platt, Jr., and William Pert. The Woman's Guild expect to hold their annual meeting for the election of officers on Friday, May 2nd, in the Parish House. It has thus been postponed one week.

Rev. Frederic Palmer, D. D. will preach in Christ Church on the fourth Sunday after Easter, May 18th.

NEWS FROM ITALY

Letter From Mr. Freeman of P. A. Faculty With Red Cross In Italy

March 11, 1919

It seems a long time since I left Andover, and, measured by the events which have happened, it is longer than it seems. Personally I have had none of the experiences which I expected, nor have I had exactly a dull time. You may have heard that I was put into a rather congenial, but disgracefully comfortable position in a library in the Place Vendôme, in which "dug-out" I spent some six weeks. While there, I met many number of Andover boys, all of whom inquired for you and the school. To come from Andover gives one almost as much advantage as to wear a U. S. army uniform. Andover men are about as numerous as Ford cars, and you find them holding Pierce Arrow jobs.

As you know, I was taken out of my Paris "dug-out" and put on the Balkan Commission to help in the preparation of a history of the Red Cross work in the Balkan states. It seems to be necessary for every properly equipped commission over there to have a Boswell to record its achievements. While waiting for its achievements to take place, I am at work on a sketch of Balkan history, but the difficulty of the subject is increased from lack of books. There is practically nothing to be had here at Rome. I could do better with this part of the work if I were back in our own Academy library. To the Romans, the Balkans appear to be as unknown as they are uninteresting.

We have been here for five weeks, and are now planning to cross over to Albania, Montenegro and the Dalmatian coast to look for the achievements which we are expected to record for the enlightenment of generations yet unborn, and for the glory of the members of the commission. Later we will carry our search for achievements into the other Balkan states. It seems likely that our headquarters will soon be moved to Constantinople, in which case we hope to be able to use the library of Robert College. The more I read and know of Balkan affairs, the more admiration I have for Robert College. It is impossible to describe adequately, its influence on the history of southeastern Europe. It has been simply prodigious! Because of the American connection through it and the reaction of the emigration of Balkan people to America, our influence and prestige in those states is extraordinary. I get it from every side. We are the only power whom they trust.

You have no idea how the war has demoralized transportation. For example, I made a special trip from Paris to London to get some books we needed rather than trust them to the mails or express. One can well understand the delay in getting mails to our troops. You simply can't count on going anywhere in any particular time or way. We are leaving Wednesday night for Brindisi, to cross over to Albania, but we have no information as to when we can leave Brindisi or what port we will reach on the Albanian coast. We will simply wait for some boat to come along. We don't know how we shall get from place to place, and no information can be secured in Rome. We hope to go up the Dalmatian coast, but we are told that no steamers touch at any port north of Ragusa, because of mine fields. The lack of information and uncertainty of travel are medieval. One has to rely on news brought by men who return, and their accounts seldom agree. Of course, one chief difficulty arises from the censorship of the press, and the way news is manufactured and colored, to serve the purpose of some propaganda. One report current here a week ago, was that Montenegro was in wild disorder, because of the contests between those who favored annexation to Serbia and those who support the old king, Nicholas. Another report would make out that Montenegro was more than quiet. And of course, both reports may be true, at different times.

The fight that is on in America over the league of nations, is reported by the press here with great interest, for of course, without us, the league will fail. It is inconceivable that the great powers would in such case have sufficient confidence in each other to make it go. I know that much opposition to it will arise from those who don't like Wilson, but this League seems to me such a vital matter that it ought not to be opposed for anything but the soundest reason. I know there are valid objections to it, but they are outweighed by the responsibility which we owe to Europe and to the peace of the world. We didn't by any means destroy Germany when we defeated Germany. There is still aristocracy enough left in every nation on this side if it should only get control, and without the influence which we possess among the people, there is a long chance that it will get control. The League will not, of course, put an end to war, but if it will prolong peace, it is just as much our duty to support it as it was to prevent the Germans from taking Paris.

But I didn't sit down to write a pamphlet. Excuse me! One hears and reads so much of international affairs that he gets as interested in them as we used to in the Andover-Exeter games. I see Col. Sam Fuller often. He has made a great reputation. He is now head of the Italian Commission. There seems to be good reason to believe that the Red Cross saved the day in Italy after the Caporetto affair, by restoring the morale of the Italian army. The Italians are very friendly to the Red Cross as they are to the "Y."

SAVE MONEY ON SHOES FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

From Foochow, China, comes this letter from R. E. Gardner, Foochow College: "Neolin Soles have solved the shoe problem for me. Other soles wore out quickly on the rocky roads here, and I had no end of trouble with them," he writes.

Where other soles fail, Neolin Soles always stand the test of hard wear and rough usage. This fact points the way to economy. Buy Neolin-soled shoes for the whole family, and so save shoe money. And have Neolin Soles put on your old shoes, too.

These durable, flexible, and waterproof soles are scientifically made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels, guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

OF COURSE THE LIBERTY LOAN! It demands the immediate and generous attention of every man who can afford to invest a dollar in anything. A good investment surely, but better than that, the last, full rounded opportunity afforded American people for doing what the striking figure of the Provincetown fisherman so vividly expressed in one of the posters in this statement, "Sure, we'll finish the job." That is the whole story of the present appeal. The job is nearly over. Sure, we'll finish it.

Today's Parade

Today, in Boston, the state's great soldier body passes in review for probably the last time before the men scatter to different pursuits than those of war. Great as the spectacle in Boston will be, it is doubtful if it will be any more impressive than was the review held this week at Devens, where that vast parade ground massed practically the same body of troops for various exercises incident to the show soldier. These particular boys, however, have a distinction not at all associated with efficient drilling or any of the other accomplishments talked about in the tactician's discussion of soldiers' duties. Not that they are at all lacking in those accomplishments, but they have made their training and long hours of drilling, score in actual fighting beyond the record of almost any other group of soldiers in the country. They will, therefore, pass before the reviewing stands in Boston today, as seasoned troops, worked out of raw material in the shortest time known to history, and with records associated with their names, of which not only individuals will have a right to be proud, but which the nation at large will long give high credit to.

Andover boys in today's review, have had the peculiar distinction of holding together in a remarkable way, from enlistment to discharge. We are told that the discharge is to come the early part of next week. Already, plans are shaping for the local recognition of these later home comers, but we have a notion that the best consideration that can be given to them, will be to allow them to do just about as they please for a little while after getting out of the service.

The bright pages of American history touch every city, town, and village hamlet throughout the entire nation; Andover has reason to rejoice that her men in the great war, have carried through every crisis the standards upon which the town was so long ago established, and for which, Andover men through all the years, have loyally stood.

Ninety Years of Abbot Academy

In a simple way, but in order that the long period covered by its record of achievement might have some recognition, friends of Abbot Academy have this week placed another marker.

Ninety years is a long time, spanning the days of but few men and women who pass through the world. Within that period, great events have been recorded, rare achievements have been chronicled, wonderful progress in the world's history has been made. The school itself, may take pride in its past, in the upswing all the way, in the rich promise of the present time. In its long course, many men and women have contributed to its material prosperity, and many more have partaken of the gifts it has strewn in education, in culture, in refinement, in building womanhood of the best sort up to standards ever held high.

The town is rich in having as one of its rare possessions, this institution which has given the world so much, and which has made with what the world has given it, a record of long and faithful stewardship.

The century mark will soon be here, to be recognized probably with a much more pretentious celebration. Certainly if the present position of leadership, which the school holds among similar institutions in the nation is maintained, as there is every promise that it will be, it will have the right to an even higher place than it now holds, because the last ten years of the century will be the brightest in all its career.

The Costly Highways

Everywhere one goes the same story—the street repair, is being seen, either in practical working or in preparation. As stated before, it has been a long time since any winter has left the public highways in such conditions as we find most of the streets this year. The job of repairing is no easy one, but one cannot watch the way in which the work is going on, not in Andover alone, but in every other city and town, without feeling that the time has come to stop such an expensive program of first construction as we have followed in the building of some of our less important roads in years past.

Some of the best highways we have anywhere, are those that have been constructed of cinders, while all over the outskirts, even though there may be some mud in the spring, the easy repair which is possible through road scraper and road patching, is giving us some excellent roads and more service for more months of the year, than do some of the macadam roads more pretty generally neglected. The Townsman is pretty strong in its belief that less money in construction for many of the less important roads, is a matter that ought to be carried out more intensively from year to year, and we are glad to see that the Board of Public Works in Andover, is recognizing that there is some merit in this program.

FINE BANQUET

Smith and Dove Bowling League
Celebrated Tuesday Night
—Dinner, Speeches and Entertainment

The Smith and Dove Bowling League banquet was held at the Hillside House, Tuesday evening, to which about fifty bowlers and invited guests, including several officials of the company, sat down. Caterer Thomas E. Rhodes served the following menu: soup, bread sticks, turkey, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, asparagus salad, rolls, Red Feather ginger ale, ice cream, frozen pudding, fancy cookies, coffee and cigars.

After this excellent repast was thoroughly enjoyed, Arthur J. Beer, chairman of the League, presided as master of ceremonies. He congratulated the New Mill on their fifth successive championship and spoke a few words of encouragement to the "runners-up the Old Mill."

Sergt. John K. Converse recently returned from France, where he went with Battery F, 102nd F. A., 26th Division, and was afterwards transferred to the tank service, gave a very interesting talk on the experiences at the front with "land dreadnoughts."

The entertainment was provided by the Raidsy Trio of Lawrence, E. A. Raidsy, Miss Mildred Raidsy and Dot Raidsy and their program of vocal and instrumental music and readings was greatly enjoyed, little Dot, as usual, making a big hit. The first part of the program consisted of an old fashioned minstrel show which was very cleverly given by the trio and the bowlers enjoyed the many hits at their expense.

The program:

PART I
"With the Minstrel" introducing Overture
and E. A. Raidsy in "The Alcoholic Blues" Solo, "You Can Tell He's an American"

Lecture Greatly Enjoyed

Guy Webster Lowell, architect and friend of Phillips Academy, gave a most interesting lecture in the Stone Chapel last Monday evening. This was the third of a course of lectures in the Phillips Club series which have been open to the public, and the subject was: "A Year at the Italian Front."

Mr. Lowell has been for the past fourteen months in Italy, with the American Red Cross. Many pictures illustrated the severe trials which this brave nation has had to endure, while others showed the different phases of work accomplished by the Red Cross secretaries at the canteens.

Be Ready to Welcome Battery Boys

It has been rumored that the Battery F boys of Andover are coming home in a large truck from Camp Devens, next Tuesday, the 29th. As this is merely a rumor, and, as all affairs in which various and sundry persons take part are indefinite to arrange for, there can be no plans of welcome made beforehand. However, should it be possible for them to arrive at the same time, it is hoped that a good number of townspeople will get together in the square and give them an enthusiastic homecoming.

2000 Men Needed

The United States Shipping Board sends out through its Recruiting Service, an appeal for men to enroll in the Merchant Marine. Men are wanted for all departments on the training ships, and applicants for the deck department are just as welcome as those for the engine room.

Enrolling agent F. H. Stacey hopes that Andover may have a part in supplying a few of these 2000 marines that are so greatly needed by the country.

We cannot do enough for the sightless, deaf, crippled, wounded or sick. But we will do what we can.

Hempel's Many Concert Triumphs

The operatic stage knows few sopranos in history of greater and more varied gifts than Frieda Hempel who comes to the Lawrence Colonial Theatre as one of the chief concert attractions in the series of notable musical events arranged by R. E. Sault. But Miss Hempel's superb work in opera has been duplicated on the concert platform as well, a thing as unusual as it is delightful. It was four years ago that she first attracted wide attention as a concert star in this country, although her fame in Europe was second to no other. The wonderful beauty of voice has always captivated crowds, and her personal loveliness won immediate favor. In Cleveland, the Press stated, "Such exquisite tonal quality and vocal control of perfection, can be compared only to Sembrich in her prime." "Her program was faultless" said the Detroit Journal, "and she revealed a song utterance so natural, so pure and spontaneous, that no other voice seems quite so marvelous."

Those are but two of the hundreds of glowing accounts of her concert accomplishments. Her work is a revelation everywhere, a delight to everyone and an inspiration and model for all singers.

Meeting of Ladies' Benevolent Society

Afternoon tea was then served with Mrs. Smith as hostess.

Baldwin; collectors, Mrs. George A. Christie, Mrs. George D. Lawson; directresses, Mrs. David S. Lindsay, (chairman), Mrs. Frank Buttrick, Mrs. John H. ORGAN RECITAL

George Alexander A. West of Philadelphia at Phillips Academy Wednesday Evening

An organ recital of unusual merit was given in the chapel of Phillips Academy on last Wednesday evening, by George Alexander A. West, organist and choir-master of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Philadelphia. Mr. West, who is one of the leading organists of the country, is a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists and also a Fellow of the American Guild of Organists. He is also the Dean of the Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

In the interesting program played by Mr. West, his mastery technique, and his ability of artistic interpretation were manifest throughout. It is difficult to say which number pleased the most, as all were played with a discriminating attention to tone color. Perhaps the first number, "Sonata No. 5, in C minor, by Guilman, and "Gesu Bambino" by Yon, may have pleased the greatest number, although many enjoyed "Best's "March for a Church Festival" because of its bright and festive air.

The program was as follows:

Sonata No. 5, in C minor
Allegro Appassionato
Adagio
Scherzo
Deep River
Allegretto
Intermezzo
March for a Church Festival
Barcarolle
Fanfare
Gesu Bambino
Toccata

American Negro Melody

He arrived home from France about a month ago, and came to his home on Summer street to see his mother, Mrs. Agnes Gillen, last Thursday.

South Church Notes

The Women's Union held its annual business meeting Thursday afternoon at 3.30 and listened to interesting reports by the various departments of work. President, Mary Alice Abbot, vice-president, Mary W. Bell; secretary, Mrs. Nathan C. Hamblin; treasurer, Miss Ellen G. Ellis; missionary chairman, Mrs. John V. Holt; sewing chairman, Mrs. Henry A. Bodwell, social chairman, Mrs. Horace H. Smith; hospitality chairman, Mrs. Mary T. Bushnell.

What a happy season for a memorial service for those who gave so much! Easteride, with its wonderful truth of the resurrection, brings a message of hope and joy to all.

"Now let the heavens be joyful,
Let earth her song begin,
The round earth keep high triumph,

Let all things seen and unseen
Their notes together blend,
For Christ the Lord is risen,
Our joy that hath no end."

ABBOT ANNIVERSARY

Exercises Held Wednesday to Commemorate Founding of School Ninety Years Ago

Friends and alumnae of Abbot Academy, gathered in Davis Hall last Wednesday afternoon, to commemorate the founding of the Academy ninety years ago. Graduates of many classes joined with friends from Andover and other towns, in an impressive service of tribute to the men and women who, so long ago, started there the first incorporated school in New England, for the education of young women alone.

Miss Bailey, after telling the history of the founding of Abbot Academy to the day, May 6, 1829, when it was actually opened for classes, emphasized particularly, the wisdom and foresight of the founders, in defining the purpose of the school: "To form the immortal mind to habits suited to an immortal being, and to instill principles of conduct and form the character, for an immortal destiny." In conclusion, Miss Bailey read Miss McKen's very beautiful tribute to Madame Sarah Abbot, by whose generosity the Academy was made a reality.

Very appropriately, for April twenty-third and Shakespeare's birthday, Mrs. Edith Wynne Matthison Kennedy, impersonated four of Shakespeare's well-loved heroines. The personal meeting with one who so truly enters into the mood of the characters whom she represents, was indeed a pleasure which rarely offers.

Later in the afternoon, Draper Hall and the cottages were open to alumnae and visitors. Several members of the Alumnae Council, who came for the anniversary meeting, spent Thursday at the Academy.

Last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sharpe, a reception was tendered to their son Roy, who has just returned from overseas service with the Canadian Forces.

The guests assembled in the parlor, into which Roy was led, quite unaware of the presence of the young folks. He was not left long in ignorance of their whereabouts, for a shout of welcome greeted him as he crossed the threshold. After quietness was restored, James Jacobs presented Mr. Sharpe with a signet ring.

Roy thanked his friends for the beautiful gift, and for their kind sentiment in showing pleasure at his return, and hoped the remainder of the evening would be as pleasant for all as the first few moments had been for himself.

And so it proved, for with singing, dancing, music and the playing of games, the hours were filled with cheer. Miss May Hurley and George Haddon gave several exhibition dances. Refreshments were enjoyed at intervals during the evening.

Rev. Ralph Harlow's Lecture

Sunday evening at the Phillips Academy chapel, the third lecture in the Outlook Series was given by Rev. Ralph Harlow of Smyrna, Turkey. The subject was, "The New Era in the Near East" and he inspired his audience by the stories of enthusiasm and force with which the missionaries have worked among those people. The cruelties and atrocities of the Turkish rulers, the damages done by them to all advances made by the Christian workers, the tortures and massacres, all proved how greatly the war is going to help out the civilization of these people. He told of the great demand there is in that country for teachers and men of all kinds of occupation, and said that there is a great future in store for Asia Minor.

A TRIP TO PARIS

Sergt. Major George C. Napier
Writes of Three Days Leave
Crowded with Interesting
Sights

Office of the Inspector General,
27 March, 1919

I am about to tell of my experiences on a three day leave to Paris. I left Bar-sur-Aube, March 24th, on the 6.44 train, and arrived in Paris, about eleven o'clock, and immediately reported at St. Anne's Hotel, where I was checked in for three days, my time being up to Thursday noon at 12.50. After checking in, I started about looking for the Pavillon Hotel where the Y. M. C. A. is located. After traveling around about half an hour, I found it. Of course I was taking in all the sights at the same time, so didn't mind the walk any.

I reached the Y. M. C. A. about 11.45, and at once got in line for a haircut, and just as I was to step into the chair, I heard the Y. M. C. A. announcer yell, "All men who are going to Versailles get their lunch as the trip starts at 12.30." Right away quick, I got my lunch of two sandwiches and a cup of chocolate and got my ticket for Versailles. We left at 12.30 for the Metro, which is the subway of Paris, and I will say it is a system, and as good as any in the States. The air seems to be much better. If a fellow knows the game, he can ride all over Paris for a few cents. After a few minutes ride, we arrived at the Station which was opposite the building where the Peace Conference is being held, and got an electric train for Versailles. We arrived at Versailles in about twenty minutes and at once went to the Palace of Louis XIV, which is the main point of interest. It covers about forty acres and it is a massive structure. The cost is estimated at 400,000,000 francs. It took us about two hours to make the trip through the palace and around the grounds.

In the building I saw many fine pieces of architecture, and some fine paintings. Also the bedroom of Louis XIV. Walking around the park or grounds, one sees various fountains and statues, and I will say there are a great many of them. These fountains are not in action a great deal, as a great amount of water must be wasted to operate them. The guide said that on Sundays they are run for about two hours. Paris can't stand the lost water. Also took in the orange grove in the park.

We left Versailles about five o'clock, returning to Paris. On arrival at station, a crowd was standing on the outside, waiting for the peace delegates to come out from the Peace Conference Building, which is across from the station, so I had to see this. I waited in the rain from 5.30 until 6.30, at which time, I saw the President, Pershing, Foch, Lloyd George, Clemenceau and many of the others. The crowd was greeted with a smile and a wave from the President. We arrived back at the Pavillon Hotel about seven o'clock, and after having dinner, enjoyed a dance at the hotel where there were many American girls. After the dance I got a room in a hotel near the Pavillon. Twelve o'clock, noon, is the time to get rooms in the Pavillon, but on account of my going to the Palace of Louis XIV at Versailles, I had no time to arrange for this.

Tuesday morning I took the trip to the Latin quarters which was very interesting. This might sound like slums to you folks, but this was not the case. We took the Metro and got off at the Church of St. Sulpice. This trip took the Luxembourg Galleries and museums which contain many fine statues and pictures. We also visited the Church of St. Sulpice. Also the fine Luxembourg Gardens which are supposed to be the prettiest in the world, but have not been taken care of since the war started. They are now being put into shape. From there we went to the Pantheon, a massive structure of history. We were unable to get into this building. From there we went to the Paris University, and I will say in the part where the President of the United States received his degree of philosophy on his first visit to France. Then we went to the church of Richelieu, a church of much history. This finished our trip for the morning.

In the afternoon I went to the Louvre, which is some place. It took us three hours to go through here. I can't say how many statues are in this place, but it is something like 4000. Anyway, there are "beaucoup." It contains statues of Romans, Greeks and stones or ornaments of old Kings. Coming out of the Louvre we strolled through the Tuileries Gardens and drive, which is unpassable. Here I left the Y. M. C. A. guide and strolled back through the streets to the Church of Madeleine. This is a very fine church, finely furnished, and where Napoleon held all his feasts and meetings.

Then down the Rue Italien we went back to the Y. M. C. A., where we had dinner for four francs. The Y. M. C. A. and the Red Cross are certainly the only places in Paris for an enlisted man. They do everything for the boys. Conduct all the trips which, if the fellows were to pay for, would cost him something, and they miss nothing of interest on these trips. After supper I went to the Olympia Theatre, where I enjoyed a vaudeville show. The acts were mixed some in French, and the rest in English. Very good show. It was surprising to see the women sitting around smoking with the men. They think nothing of it. One thing I noticed in particular, about this theatre, was the tipping of the ushers. If you don't tip them, they ask for it. Oh, they are great stickers. Coming out of this show, we promenaded down the Italian Boulevard, and at this time, there is nothing but women on the streets. This is the main boulevard, and it is crowded all the time. There are some beautiful women in Paris, I must say. I stayed at the Y. M. C. A. all night.

The next morning I took the trip around the city in the Y. M. C. A. bus, and I will say it was most interesting. I believe we took in most of the places of interest in the city. We passed under many arches which were formerly the location of the famous wall that was around Paris, and the arches mark it as being all that is left. I saw the church where the shell from the Big Bertha, (German Gun) that bombarded Paris landed on March 28, 1918, killing some eighty and wounding over two hundred. It was the Church of St. Cervais. The hole is still in the roof. From here, we went to the Notre Dame Church, and I can't explain how wonderful a church that is. They were having mass in there at the time, so we didn't see all we might have. The churches in Paris certainly are wonderful, and I can't explain them.

From here we went to the Court of Justice, and saw the room where the Judges sit. Also a hall called the Hall of Lost Footsteps. In this hall the lawyers of Paris talk to their clients and arrange their cases. I believe this is where it got its name. In the court room is a mat, a tapestry mat, which cost some 300,000 francs. The room is finished in gold and many beautiful paintings can be seen on the ceiling. On we went through the Arch of Triumph which was built by Napoleon to celebrate his victories. And then through the quarters where the Peace delegates are staying, and I had the opportunity to see the house where the President is stopping. From here we went to the Invalides, which you no doubt, have read about, and which contains the tomb of Napoleon. The guide said Napoleon was inside in three caskets in this tomb, and that his body was in a fine state of preservation. We didn't have much time in here, as it closed at eleven o'clock, and it was eleven then. However, we got a good idea of what a massive building it was, and some scenes including a colored glass window above the high altar as they call it, which causes the light to have that clear, bright color. The guide said it was the only window of its kind, in the world. He also said the man who made it was unable to make another. I guess his genius failed him.

On we went to the Eiffel, which you have heard about. This is 1000 feet high, counting flag pole, and is made of steel. We were unable to go into this, as it is in operation, but the guide said in two or three weeks, it would be open to tourists. We then tripped over to the Pantheon de la Guerre, or Pantheon of the War. This is a picture which was started when the war broke out, and contains paintings of the great men who took part in this war. It is 375 feet long, and to look at the faces of these men, you would think they were real. I can't explain this picture, it is so wonderful. They have a part for each nation of the world. The American side contains portraits of Wilson, Pershing, Sims, House, Daniels, Lufberry, the great aviator who was killed, and many other famous men of this war. The British side contains King George, Lloyd George, Edith Cavell, who was killed by the Germans early in the war, Admiral Beatty, and many other British men. Also the French men of note. The towns of France, that is, the towns that were in the war area, are all shown, and Rheims is shown burning, in the distance. They say if one looks through field glasses, he can see the buildings in the town. This, however, cannot be seen by the naked eye.

Perhaps I have missed some of the other places of interest on this trip. I have seen so many, I can't remember them all, but I saw everything of interest I am sure, and at least, all that could be seen in three days. This finished my trip around the city in the bus. In the afternoon, I took the boat trip up the Seine River, and into the Marne. We passed under thirty-three bridges. The guide pointed out all the places of interest along the line, and I will say it was an interesting trip. We went up the river, to where the Marne flows into the Seine, and then came all the way back through the city of Paris. The Seine river is very winding, and in this way, we passed practically through all of Paris. We went through the city of Paris, on the town of St. Cloud, where we got off, and climbed the hill the Germans reached in 1870, when they captured Paris. From here, on a clear day, one can get a fine view of Paris, but it was very cloudy, and misty this day, so we could not see very much. We could just make out the Eiffel Tower in the distance. We remained in St. Cloud about half an hour, and started back up the river. We got off the boat at Place de la Concorde, where we went over to the Eiffel Tower, and stood under it for a few moments. Some size. It stands out from the rest of the city, owing to its immense height. I don't know whether you know this or not, but the buildings in Paris are not allowed to be built any higher than eight stories. They claim any higher buildings would spoil the beauty of Paris. The Parisians are always striving to beautify this city, and I don't blame them for not wanting the Germans to capture same.

From here we went to the Ferris Wheel, which is the largest ferris wheel in the world, and was formerly in Chicago, being brought over here for the exposition, and left here. I took a ride in this wheel for a franc, and will say it is some height. I felt dizzy at first, but got used to it. The sights from there were wonderful. Coming out of the wheel, we went over to the Red Cross canteen, where we enjoyed sandwiches and chocolate. This cost us ten cents. One pays ten cents when he enters, and the sandwiches and coffee or chocolate or tea, are at his disposition, and he can take whatever he wants, and as much of it as he wants. The Red Cross has done fine work for the boys in Paris. A fellow is always sure of a bed at the Red Cross.

After leaving the Red Cross we got a car and got off at the Bridge of Concorde, and proceeded across the bridge and over through the park and drive, to the Place de la Glaise, the Y. M. C. A. being here. This is a fine building having been a skating rink at one time. From here, we went to the Soldiers' and Sailors' club, and then down the Italian Boulevard, to the Opera. This is called the Grand Opera, and is the best in the world. The show started at 7.30 sharp, and as I bought tickets the day before, I was all set. I had a fine seat. This Opera is noted for its great staircase, which is trimmed with gold. The architecture in this building is wonderful, as well as the paintings. It is beyond me to explain it as it is. Of course, I could not understand the players as everything was in French, but the singers had wonderful voices, and their costumes were unpassable. After each act, the crowd or audience, move out to the promenade, which is the feature of the theatre. Here the better class of Paris can be seen, and wonderful costumes. Can you imagine me in khaki parading around? A soldier would do anything, you know.

The show let out about 11.30, and after walking around the streets for about an hour, I wound up at the Y. M. C. A. again. The next morning Thursday, I took a walk down through the shopping center with another fellow. I had to leave at 12.50 that day, so couldn't make any of the trips that day, but will say I enjoyed going through some of the stores which are neatly arranged and most of the clerks can speak fine English. After buying a few souvenirs, we tripped back to the Y. M. C. A. and had lunch, after which I parted for the depot. I checked out, and left the depot at 12.50 on the dot, and arrived in Bar-sur-Aube, about 7.30, a very long ride to be sure.

I can say that I haven't enjoyed myself so much since I have been in France, and I surely wouldn't have missed this trip for anything. As I say, I believe I saw most of the points of interest, although they say it would take a man three weeks to see all of Paris. However, the Y. M. C. A. has picked out most of the places we read about, and I can't say enough for the Y. M. C. A. or the way they are handling these trips. I am sure a man could never see what I have, by going around himself. Everything seems to be handled in a systematic manner.

Well, dear friends, I can't say this will be a very interesting letter, but it will give you an idea of what I have seen in my three days' trip to Paris.

BASEBALL AT PUNCHARD

Holland Gets 19 Strikeouts in Game with Johnson High—Team to Play Woburn Today

The Pynchard High school opened its baseball season Monday afternoon on the local playstead, when it defeated Johnson High of North Andover, by the score of 10 to 4. The outcome of the game was never in doubt after the second inning. Johnson scored two runs in the second inning when Godfrey first man up, reached first on Holland's error. Friel reached first on a pass. Both men advanced a base when Masien got a single to left. Godfrey scored on a wild pitch by Holland and Friel scored when Allen hit to center-field. Pynchard's big inning was the third, when they scored eight runs and put the game on ice. "Joe" Holland pitched winning ball all the game, and had the Johnson players at his mercy. Collins played a steady game for Johnson and got three hits.

Mitchell, the Johnson pitcher, pitched good ball after the third inning and kept the hits well scattered.

FARMING IN FRANCE

In a Letter to Wm. M. Wood, Sergt. Harold S. Cates Tells of Course at A. E. F. University

A. E. F. University, Beaune, Co. F., 9th Prov. Regt. A. P. O. No. 909, France, March 22, 1919

Dear Mr. Wood:

I thought I would write you a few lines this evening, and let you know where I am at present. You probably have heard of the A. E. F. University at Beaune, about twenty-five kilometers from Dijon, and that is where I am now. I was in a machine-gun replacement company, which had transferred most of its men into the army of occupation, or into new companies being formed, such as Railway Transportation companies or construction battalions. Well, I thought as long as I had to stay in France for a few months anyway, I would be much better off studying and learning something which will be of use when I do get home. It will not interfere in any way with my going home, if my outfit should move.

I am taking up agriculture, and am satisfied that they are going to give a fine course in it. President Butterfield, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College is here, also many of its instructors and scholars. The course started the 1st of March and ends May 31st, and then a second term starts for three months more. I am taking up horticulture, floriculture, orcharding and plant pathology, and am also trying to take as much as possible, of farm management. Lots of this will be a review for me, and a little will be new. In the University there are fourteen different colleges, and between ten and fifteen thousand students. They have here, some of the best educators in the United States, and all are doing their best to make it a success. There is also a large library here, and there are one or two lectures given every week, on the subjects of Citizenship and Industries, and the like.

The camp here at Beaune, is a large Red Cross Hospital Camp. The barracks are of wood and cement, and are fine. The beds are the iron hospital cots, and also seem fine after sleeping on tile floors for a long time. The whole camp is fitted with electricity, and labor battalions and engineers are fixing up the roads and new buildings.

The country around Beaune and Dijon, in the district of Cote d'Or, is very different from the most of France I have seen. It is a much prettier part, and the people seem much more industrious. They have fine farms and take good care of them.

I only wish I was home now, to commence the spring work, but know every man must be patient and make the best of all the opportunities that are given him.

Hoping everything is going well at Arden, and on the other farms, I will bring this letter to a close.

Wishing you and your family the best of health, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) SERGT. HAROLD S. CATES

Easter Sale and Play

In Christ church vestry, Monday afternoon, a most successful Easter sale of cakes, candy, and fancy articles was held by the Girls' Friendly Society, under the direction of Mrs. William Odlin. Miss Margaret McTernan and Mrs. Omar Jenkins had charge of the cake table, Mrs. Frank H. Paige had the candy table, while Mrs. Eben Baldwin sold the fancy goods.

In the evening a play called "Neighbors" written by Zona Gale, was presented by members of the Girls' Friendly Society. Mrs. Douglas Crawford directed the play, and seldom is an amateur production any more perfectly and charmingly carried out. The play itself, was full of amusing and clever lines, and the characters lived their parts remarkably well.

The characters of the play were: Mrs. Alice, Miss Sarah Smith, Ines, her daughter, Miss Helen Smith, Grandma, Miss Ebel Hilton, Mrs. Trot, Miss Alice Scofield, Mrs. Moran, Miss Violet Cole, Mrs. Ellsworth, Miss Caroline Berry, Peter, Miss Eleanor Emmett, Ezra, Miss Mac Shaw.

Following the play, little Mildred Towler gave a dance and two recitations, "Captain Leahy" and "When the Minister Comes to Tea."

Ice cream and cake were then sold as the final event in this entertainment, which is given annually to raise money for the Girls' Friendly Society.

Early rhubarb of high quality can be had by placing cans or boxes, open end or side down to shut out the light, over two or three plants. Plants so covered will have stalks ready for use a week or two earlier than uncovered plants and the quality is more delicate.

Good Enough for Him!

Jones had become rich overnight on war profits, and it was with an exaggerated idea of his own importance that he stepped into an office one day and demanded to see the manager.

"What is your business?" asked the dainty girl who confronted him.

"None of yours!" snapped Jones.

"I've got an important proposition to lay before the firm, and I don't want to talk to any fool woman."

"You would rather talk to a gentleman?" asked the fool woman sweetly.

"Certainly," growled Jones.

"So would I," retorted the woman, promptly, adding, "so you might send one to state your business to me. I am the manager."—Boston Globe.

Your share in the Victory is not complete unless you share in the Victory Loan.

In last week's "Literary Digest" were these lines, written by E. H. Shillito and published in the London "Graphic"—
6 PT POEM—THE SAME DULL

Tomorrow is Arbor Day. And this year more than ever is that day to be celebrated by the planting of trees. It has been suggested that everyone all over the country should plant a tree in honor of the glorious men who have given their lives for us.

Trees, whether they be pine trees, cherry trees, maple trees or juniper trees, are precious growing things and as Ruskin says are "a link between earth and man". "Only God can make a tree", but man has the privilege of causing them to flourish and make the land beautiful. Dr. van Dyke in his poem, "The Friendly Trees", wrote the following lines:—

"He that planteth a tree is a servant of God.
He hath provided a kindness for many generations,
And faces that he hath never seen shall bless him."

Clarence Ousley has written this tribute to Trees:—

Trees are the arms of Mother Earth lifted up in worship of her Maker. Where they are, Beauty dwells; where they are not, the land is ugly, though it be rich, for its richness is but greasy fatness and its gaudy raiment is but cheap imitation of forest finery.

Trees are the shelter of man and beast and bird; they furnish the roof above us, the shade about us, and the nesting places of love and song. They call children out to play; they console and gratefully reward old age. They are the fittest ornaments of wealth and the inalienable possessions of the poor who can enjoy them without having title to them. They are the masts that fly the flag of all nations and the sails of all the seas; they are the upbeaters that bridge forbidding streams; they bear the wires that carry the traffic of the continents; they are the carved and polished furnishings of the home; they cradle the young and coffin the dead.

Trees are nature's prime sources of food; their fruits and nuts gave sustenance to the first tribes of men and are the sweetest and most nourishing of the earth's products.

Trees herald the spring with glorious banners of leaf and bloom; they clothe the autumn in garments of gold and royal purple; bared to the winter's cold, they are the harp of the winds, and they whisper the music of the infinite spaces.

Before the earth could be peopled it was set thick with trees; and when man has run his course and the race we know has disappeared in the completeness of its mission or perishes in the destruction of its trees, the earth will spring up again with new forests to shelter and sustain a new race of men and beasts and birds to work out a greater destiny. Perhaps if we were wise enough to replenish our waning forests and to make ourselves worthy of the gift of trees we may be permitted to accomplish that greater destiny which the Mighty Forester, the Perfect Orchardist, the Loving Father requires in the fulfillment of His sublime purpose.

At Christ Church, Sunday, the service will be in commemoration of those men who have given their lives in service for this country. The choirmaster, B. Frank Michelsen, has written the following poem which is to be sung to the tune of "America." It is indeed beautiful and worthy of this music which has inspired so many to a greater love for their country.

To God th' eternal King,
Our grateful thanks we sing
For victory.
To Thee our songs we raise
In joyous hymns of praise;
Now, and through endless days,
Thanks be to Thee.

O God make wars to cease,
Give us a lasting peace,
For evermore.
Send us Thy Heavenly Dove,
Sweet Messenger of Love;
To Thee, O God above,
Our hearts would soar.

United firm may stand
Peoples of every land
For Truth and Right,
Let nations live for Thee
In Faith and Harmony;
Our pray'r fore'er shall be,
O God of Light.

If people think our country has spent "a terrible lot" of money on the war and feel that they can't subscribe to this last "Finishing-Up" Loan, they should read the following article from "The Weekly" and find that the United States stands at the foot of the list of those nations that had to suffer the cost of the war. And that doesn't include what those other nations have lost in blood, in homes, lands, and other cherished possessions.

"The current statement, emanating from the Federal Reserve Board, of the cost of the war to the various nations, is presumably accurate, yet in the way it is expressed and exploited it is most misleading. Thus it is stated that the total expenditures of America and the Allies were $18,375,000,000, of which Great Britain spent $37,100,000,000.

Motor Hospitals in Epidemic

Motorized hospital equipment operated by the Massachusetts State Guard saved many lives during the recent influenza epidemic. The equipment, which comprises two operating rooms mounted on two-ton Pierce-Arrow chassis, is used in cases of catastrophes or other emergencies. The operating rooms are fully equipped with running water, surgical appliances, sterilizing apparatus—in fact, they are miniature hospitals. During the influenza epidemic in Boston, open-air camps were opened near the city. The Pierce-Arrow "hospitals" were stationed at these camps. Appendicitis cases or illness which required speedy operation were treated in these operating rooms at once. Thus the delay and dangers incident to the removal of patients to the city's hospitals many miles distant, were avoided.—Boston Globe.

This Week's Red Cross Quota

Andover's April quota of Red Cross garments should be finished by the end of next week. There are about 50 little girls' petticoats; 40 girls' drawers, 20 chemises and 30 children's undershirts. These articles may be taken from the Guild house and made at home. Please everybody help by taking a garment.
